¿Tú o Usted? - Explanation and Worksheet 1

We were all taught to speak to older people, our teachers, people in authority, etc. in a more formal, respectful manner. With our family and friends, we usually have a more informal, casual way of speaking.

The same is true in Spanish, but the practice varies widely depending on the country.

Spanish has the word usted (abbreviated Ud.) which is the formal (polite) form of you. The so-called familiar (informal) form of you is tú.

As a general rule, you would use usted when addressing strangers, your teachers, people in authority, or a person you address by his or her last name.

Tú is used with family, very good friends, people you would address by their first name, children, pets and the Diety. In some countries, however, children address their parents using the usted form. So when in doubt, it is always best to use the usted form until given permission to use the tú form.

The verb tutear means to address someone using the tú form.

Los amigos se tutean.

The friends use the tú form with each other. (address each other informally.)

Práctica. Using the general rules concerning the usage of tú and usted, decide which form is best when addressing:

Modelo: Your boyfriend –     tú     form

1.     tú     your best friend
2.     Ud.     your Spanish teacher
3.     Ud.     your best friend's mother
4.     tú     your dog, Pepe
5.     Ud.     your school principal
6.     Ud.     Mrs. Sánchez, your next-door neighbor
7.     tú     your brother
8.     Ud.     your classroom facilitator
9.     Ud.     your school bus driver
10.     tú     your teacher's five-year-old son
